Invitation to Our First Racial Literacy Parent Forum of the Year – Friday 27th November

Dear Parents and Carers,

At Horn Park, we believe that strong relationships are at the heart of an inclusive and thriving school community. When we take time to listen to one another, share experiences and engage in meaningful dialogue, we strengthen our collective ability to ensure that every child feels valued, respected and that they truly belong.

Following the success of last year's Racial Literacy Parent Forum, we are delighted to invite you to our first forum of this academic year on Friday 27th November at 9.05am. This will be hosted by myself, in the school's music studio.

Last year's forum brought together families from across our community to explore the school's work around racial literacy, discuss issues that matter deeply to our children and families, and create a supportive space for open and respectful conversation. The feedback we received highlighted the value of having opportunities to connect, learn from one another and contribute to shaping our school's ongoing work in this area.

This year's forum will provide an opportunity to strengthen the partnership between home and school, reflect on our shared commitment to equity and belonging, and explore some of the themes we would like to develop together over the year ahead.

Whether you attended the forum last year, are new to the school, or simply feel that now is the right time to become involved, we warmly encourage you to join us. Every voice and perspective helps us to build a stronger community for all of our children.

Please register your interest by completing this form.

This form also gives an insight into the first draft of a statement of belonging created by attendees of our summer forum, which we will explore further in the session on 27th November.

We look forward to welcoming you and continuing this important conversation together.

Kind regards,

Jack Green
